

How Potato the Chicken became a SUPERHERO

Potato the Chicken spends most days at ClearWater Farm pecking for food, looking for seeds, bugs, and even a potato peel or two—her very favourite thing to eat.

One day, as rain clouds appear, instead of running for cover with her hen friends—most chickens hate getting wet—she stands and watches the rain pour down around her. (She had always felt curious about rain, and pretty much everything else, for that matter.)

When the rain stops, a large puddle has formed at her feet. As she stares into it, Potato sees a chicken EGGs-actly like her wearing rubber rainboots, blue bangles, a water-drop belt buckle, and a unicorn horn!

Her reflection in the puddle speaks. “Potato, it’s time you knew your true identity. You’re a water-wise superhero! You’ve come back from a future where everyone treasures water. Whenever you want, you can transform from barnyard chicken to superhero just by making a splash.”

Could this be true? Potato gently taps the pool of water with her foot. Burble, gurgle, SPLOOSH! The puddle erupts and there stands Potato H<sub>2</sub>O, ready to take on missions to help kids help the planet!

H<sub>2</sub>O=Water

- ★ How do you think Potato uses her mysterious unicorn horn as a water-wise superhero? Send your ideas to info@clearwaterkids.org for a chance to win an Owlkids Books prize pack!

Winners will be chosen by random draw. Full contest rules at clearwaterkids.org/parentsandeducators.